In the afternoon, a man of about thirty-five years, plump, with a bald head and moderately dressed was waiting for me in the office. In his hand was the CD with the software. I could not place him though he seemed familiar. He smiled at me and said, 'Madam, can you recognise me'? You may not, because how can you remember all your students ? From a window you can see the outside world but from the outside you cannot see all that is inside.'

I liked his analogy and was sure he was my student because I often used this phrase in my class. Still I could not guess who he was.

'Madam, I was the perpetual latecomer of your class.'

That's when the coin dropped. 'Hi Hassan. How are you ? It's been a long time since I last met you.' I was very happy to see him.

Obedience is the habit of doing what we are told to do. It is ~~not easy~~ to learn obedience but it is necessary. Children must obey their parents. Pupils must obey their masters. ~~Soldiers must obey their officers.~~ Subjects must obey the government and all men must obey God. Why should children obey their parents ? <sup>because the children</sup> ~~The reason is that they~~ are ignorant and need training. Similarly, a servant must obey his master because he is paid to do what his master wants. ~~Soldiers must obey their officers because an army is of no use without discipline.~~ Subjects must obey their government because there would be no law and order if they did not. Obedience to God is the first law. If any man tells us to do wrong, we must disobey, so that we may obey God. God's law must come first.
