The following is an extract from a famous novel. Read it carefully and answer the Question Nos. 48-50:

It was a typical summer evening in June, the atmosphere being in such delicate equilibrium and so transmissive that inanimate objects seemed endowed with two or three senses, if not five. There was no distinction between the near and the far and auditor felt close to everything within the horizon. The soundlessness impressed her as a positive entity rather than as the mere negation of noise. It was broken by the strumming of strings.

Tess had heard those notes in the attic above her head. Dim, flattened, constrained by their confinement, they had never appealed to her as now, when they wandered in the still air with a stark quality like that of nudity. To speak absolutely, both instrument and execution were poor; but the relative is all, and as she listened, Tess, like a fascinated bird, could not leave the spot. Far from leaving, she drew up towards the performer, keeping behind the hedge that he might not guess her presence.

48. ‘...the atmosphere being in such delicate equilibrium and so transmissive’ implies that

- (A) the time was twilight, between day and night, the atmosphere charged with effusion of feeling.
- (B) the atmosphere was gently divided into two parts, transmitting spirituality.

Read the following and answer Question Nos. 97 to 100.

Paradoxes and Oxymorons

This poem is concerned with language on a very plain level. Look at it talking to you. You look out the window Or pretend to fidget. You have it but you don't have it. You miss it, it misses you. You miss each other.

The poem is sad because it wants to be yours, and cannot. What's a plain level? It is that and other things, Bringing a system of them into play. Play? Well, actually, yes, but I consider play to be

A deeper outside thing, a dreamed role pattern As in the division of grace these long August days Without proof. Open-ended. And before you know It gets lost in the steam and chatter of typewriters.

It has been played once more. I think you exist only To tease me into doing it, on your level, and then you aren't there Or have adopted a different attitude. And the poem Has set me softly down beside you. The poem is you.

97. Identify an example of paradox in the following:

- (A) You have it but you don't have it.
- (B) You miss it, it misses you.
- (C) Without proof. Open-ended.
- (D) It is that and other things.

98. Which of these lines best describes the poem?

- (A) Language on a very plain level.
- (B) It is that and other things.
- (C) To tease me into doing it, on your own level.
- (D) It gets lost in the steam and chatter of typewriters.
